Archival Information Processing for Sound Recordings
by David H. Thomas

Catalog Librarian and Sound Archivist, Rodgers & Hammerstein Archives of Recorded Sound
New York Public Library

... a theoretical and practical discussion of the creation of the database for the noncommercial sound recordings in the Rodgers & Hammerstein Archives . . . going beyond either standard archival practice, which provided limited points of access leading to a register, or standard library cataloging, which provides multiple points of access but is too time consuming for an archival situation.

This "database has helped turn chaos into order, 'stuff in the box' into processed collections, curator's memory into printed finding aids, miscellaneous retaping into systematic preservation routines, and labor-intensive scanning of archival registers into quick and easy computer searching"—Christine Hoffman (Assistant Chief of the Rodgers & Hammerstein Archives).

... an important addition to the knowledge of every archivist, librarian, and private collector who has any interest or involvement with sound recordings.
