The Association for Recorded Sound Collections is pleased to announce the finalists for the 2021 ARSC Awards for Excellence in Recorded Sound Research. Additional information about the ARSC Awards for Excellence can be found at arsc-audio.org/awards.

Begun in 1991, the ARSC Awards are given to authors of books, articles or recording liner notes to recognize those publishing the very best work today in recorded sound research. In giving these awards, ARSC recognizes the contributions of these individuals and aims to encourage others to emulate their high standards and to promote readership of their work. Awards are presented annually in each category for best history and best discography, and others may be acknowledged with Certificates of Merit. Awards are presented to both the authors and publishers of winning publications.

Finalists and winners are chosen by a committee consisting of three elected judges representing specific fields of study, two judges-at-large, the review editor of the ARSC Journal and the President or past President of ARSC. The 2021 ARSC Awards Committee consists of the following: Rob Bamberger (Jazz Music Judge); John Haley (Classical Music Judge); Matthew Barton (Popular Music Judge and ARSC President); Cary Ginell (Judge-At-Large); Richard Spottswood (Judge-at-Large); James Farrington (Book Review Editor, ARSC Journal); Patrick Feaster (ARSC Immediate Past President); and Roberta Freund Schwartz (Awards Committee Chair).

The 2021 Awards for Excellence honor books published in 2020:

BEST RESEARCH IN RECORDED ROCK OR SOUL
- Eddie Floyd and Tony Fletcher, Knock! Knock! Knock! On Wood: My Life in Soul (BMG Books)
- David French, Heart Full of Soul: Keith Relf of the Yardbirds (McFarland)
- Jeff Gomez, Zeppelin Over Dayton: Guided By Voices Album By Album (McFarland)
- Spencer Leigh, Bob Dylan Outlaw Blues (McNidder and Grace)
- Philip Norman, Wild Thing: The Short, Spellbinding Life of Jimi Hendrix

Hello ARSC! In May, we welcomed 333 attendees from around the world to participate in our virtual conference experience held for the first time on Hubilo, a virtual conference platform. Thank you to Terri Brinegar, our Program Chair, and the program committee for putting together an immensely enjoyable conference program. I would also like to extend a huge thanks to our conference team of Dan Hockstein, Rich Markow, Curtis Peoples, and Maya Lerman which spent countless hours preparing and implementing the conference on the Hubilo platform, as well as providing support throughout the conference itself.

We also held a wonderful virtual pre-conference workshop; big thanks to Brad McCoy and Seth Winner for coordinating and the presenters for sharing their deep knowledge of digital restoration.

A big bonus to using Hubilo was that all presentation recordings were available to attendees asynchronously both during the conference and for the 30 days following. I believe that will have expired by the time of this publication, but if you are an ARSC member you will be able to access recordings on Aviary (https://arsc.aviaryplatform.com/) in the coming months.

Thanks to our post-conference survey designed and analyzed by Tim Brooks, Rich Markow, and David Giovannoni, we’ve had our suspicions confirmed that many folks prefer an in-person conference to a virtual one. We are currently planning for a virtual conference in 2022, but in light of the changing state of things in the U.S., we are investigating the feasibility of planning an in-person 2022 conference at this late stage. Stay tuned!

I am very pleased to announce that Yuri Shimada and Dan Hockstein, Education and Training Committee Co-Chairs, have secured grant funding to continue the ARSC Continuing Education Webinar Series! This program will be funded August 1, 2021 to July 31, 2022 through a National Recording Preservation Board multi-task contract with the Council on Library and Information Resources. Congratulations to Yuri and Dan, who successfully piloted this program and effectively demonstrated the value of these webinars to funders.

I end, as always, with an invitation to become more involved in ARSC. As a volunteer-led organization, ARSC is powered and guided by you. Please consider joining a committee or becoming a committee chair; we all benefit when we hear more and different voices in the mix! A current list of open positions can be found on the ARSC Volunteer Opportunities page: http://www.arsc-audio.org/volunteer.html.

EDITOR’S MESSAGE

Eric Silberberg
Editor, ARSC Newsletter

Greetings ARScionians,

"When we pay attention to nature's music," says the teacher Inayat Khan, "we find that every thing on the Earth contributes to its harmony." What a daily privilege and lifelong joy to know this. However, we are living in a world of dissonance. While in the US we are emerging from this pandemic, many others in our international community are still in the throws of it. We hope that they continue to stay safe.

Music is as much, if not more, about listening than playing. But "listening" writes the artist Christine Sun Kim, “is not just an experience involving mere sound, but also a variety of sensory, emotional, and physical responses that reach beyond sonic properties.” How do you listen?

I invite you to write in to the Newsletter and share how you listen. I do not mean about your furniture or stereo system, but how do you really listen to cherished recordings? I am looking to publish your letters in the fall issue.

This is a very special issue of the Newsletter, and I hope it acts as a playbill to the great symphony of appreciation and expertise that ARScionians have for the recorded sound.

DONATE "APPRECIATED" SECURITIES TO ARSC AND SAVE ON TAXES

Steve Ramm
Treasurer

With the stock market at an all-time high, you can donate any appreciated securities that you own to ARSC and get the market value on the date of the donation as a tax deduction. With this method you will avoid any tax on the capital gain and benefit ARSC at the same time. You may use the donation to fund one of ARSC’s restricted funds or to the General Fund. You may also fill part of your Required Minimum Distribution requirement, again saving taxes. At the same time (depending on the value) you may become a Donor or Patron Member of ARSC.

For further info, contact Steve Ramm at Stevenramm@aol.com before December 20th, if you wish the deduction in 2021.
REATIONS TO THE ARSC 2021 VIRTUAL CONFERENCE

Tim Brooks
1st Vice President

As many members are aware, a survey was conducted among attendees following the 2021 virtual ARSC Conference (streamed May 12-16). The goal was to inform planning for future conferences, so that they will provide the maximum value to ARSC members. Eighty-three attendees responded representing all segments of ARSC, both professionals and private collectors.

The survey signaled a strong preference for in-person conferences. In fact, almost half of those who attended virtually this year said they would have attended in person if given the choice, COVID notwithstanding. The opportunity to meet with colleagues and friends was the principal reason. For those who would not have attended in-person, “travel during the pandemic” was the leading barrier, however once that is removed, we can expect many of them to attend as well. In fact, only 5% of all respondents expressed an actual preference for a virtual over an in-person conference.

At the same time, many recognized the value added by streaming a conference, including attendance by those who could not attend in person due to distance, finances, etc., and the ability to immediately replay papers that were missed. A “dual” conference (in-person and also streamed) would seem to be the ideal.

Regarding the program, the top two highest rated presentations (i.e., rated as “best”) were the opening panel on “Using the New U.S. Copyright Law” and David Giovannoni’s “Making a Private Collection Public,” about how he has made his large collection accessible to anyone via his custom website, https://i78s.org. Both of these presentations provided useful information for both professionals and private collectors and were highly rated by both groups.

Many other presentations also drew strong favorability ratings, including Leah Biel’s “RCA Victor’s ‘Record Hop’ Mystery,” Jerry Fabris’s “Developing an Access Policy for the Edison Disc Master Molds” and Jihoon Suk’s “Korea’s First Encounter with Sound Recordings: 1889-1906.” There were also many others. Significantly, every one of the 42 presentations in the conference was rated “best” by someone in the sample.

All of these presentations will be made available online, as a benefit of membership. Members are encouraged to sample them, and to consider being part of next year’s conference either as an attendee or presenter.

BOARD ELECTION RESULTS

Nathan Georgitis
Executive Director

The Association for Recorded Sound Collections is pleased to announce the results of its recent election of officers. ARSC’s Board of Directors for 2021-2023 includes:

President: Rebecca Chandler (AVP); First Vice President/President Elect: Tim Brooks; Second Vice-President/Program Chair: Yuri Shimada (UCLA); Treasurer: Steven I. Ramm; Member-at-Large: Dan Hockstein (UNC Chapel Hill); Member-at-Large: Robert Kosovsky (New York Public Library) (not pictured); Secretary: Jacqueline Legere; and Executive Director: Nathan Georgitis (University of Oregon).

NEWS FROM THE EDUCATION AND TRAINING COMMITTEE

Dan Hockstein & Yuri Shimoda
Co-Chairs, E&TC

The ARSC Education and Training Committee (E&TC) held a lively meeting at the virtual ARSC Conference on May 16, 2021. Members received an update on the Continuing Education Webinar Series and IASA Preservation Training Programme, and discussed plans for future collaborations with the ARSC Technical Committee on the 2022 Pre-Conference Workshop and additional educational programming.

The entire committee wishes to thank Curtis Peoples for his dedicated service as a committee chair over the years.
FIGHT THE FUNK: SONGS THAT BRING US JOY

Yuri Shimada
Coordinator, ARSC Mentoring Program

The 2021 Mentoring Program launched in April with Newcomers (those new to ARSC, as well as current students and recent graduates) being matched with a Guide to provide them with an orientation to ARSC, its members, and activities leading up to the annual conference. The entire group attended the Introduction to ARSC event on May 12, 2021 to learn more about the association, its executive board and committees, and member benefits. After a Q&A period, attendees took part in an ice-breaker activity that involved sharing of songs that make them happy. To follow is the playlist that was created during this discussion.

PUBLICATIONS COMMITTEE NEWS

Matthew Barton
Chair, Publications Committee

Please welcome Eric Silberberg as the new editor of the ARSC Newsletter! And join us in thanking Yuri Shimada for her three years as editor and wishing her the best in her new role as 2nd Vice-President of ARSC and Program Chair for our next two conferences.

The Fall issue of the ARSC Journal is well underway. The response to our first color section in the Spring, 2021 issue has been wonderful, and the next issue will feature highlights of ARSC member Peter Muldavin’s collection of children’s records. Peter, known affectionately and accurately as “The Kiddie Record King,” has curated an enormous collection of colorfully packaged children’s records from around the world, and is the author of The Complete Guide to Children’s Records. Other highlights include:

- Reagan Sommer McCoy on her Mixtape Museum and the preservation of recordings of pioneering Hip Hop DJs
- Noel Lobley on the Louis Sarno Archive of Bayaka Pygmy recordings at the Pitt Rivers Museum
- Hugh J. Paterson III analyzes “Rights Management in Anthropological and Linguistic Sound Collections”
- Albert Haim’s examination two “bands within bands” of the early 1920s: the Virginians and the Georgians, composed of members of the Paul Whiteman and Paul Specht orchestras and specializing in hot jazz and dance.
- Anita Posateri’s study of the Pathé label’s unique technology and organization in the Acoustic Era.
- Nikos Ordoulidis’ analysis of 20th Century urban popular music in Eastern Europe, the Balkans and the South-Eastern Mediterranean.
- Peter Martland’s study of the Gramophone Company’s branch in pre-revolutionary Russia.
- And learn about a different kind of music in Peter Rothenberg and an international team’s account of the rediscovery and preservation of Finnish biologist Antti Jansson’s long lost recordings of the stridulations of Corixidae water bugs.

In January, we’ll finally have a public domain for sound recordings in the United States. We’re celebrating with a special issue of the ARSC Journal and a compact disc of recordings released from 1890 through 1922, which members will receive at no extra charge. It’s a multi-artist, multi-genre, international sonic tour, sourced from individual and institutional members of ARSC, with annotation and related articles in the Journal itself. A great way to ring in the New Year and a new era of access and distribution for historic sound recordings!
COPYRIGHT COMMITTEE NEWS

Tim Brooks
Chair, Copyright & Fair Use Committee

The Copyright and Fair Use committee has been actively planning ways to celebrate the establishment of a public domain for recordings in the U.S., on January 1, 2022 (“Public Domain Day 2022”). On that date the thousands of recordings made before 1923 will become free to use for any purpose, just like other intellectual property. In subsequent years additional years of recordings will be added to this public domain. Other provisions of the Music Modernization Act (2018) will also become effective in 2022. These include the possibility of using any out-of-print or “orphan” work more freely for non-profit purposes, if the user follows certain U.S. Copyright Office notice procedures.

We want to publicize this historic event as widely as possible, not only to bring attention to the new law but also to ARSC itself, which was instrumental in its passage, and to the association’s many pro-social programs. Committee member Alex McGehee has agreed to chair a subcommittee which will design and coordinate events surrounding Public Domain Day 2022, hopefully in concert with other ARSC committees. Please contact Alex if you would like to participate in this project, or have ideas for ways to raise awareness of the new public domain, ARSC, and the value of historical recordings. alexmcgehee01@gmail.com. Remember, this day (January 1, 2022) will pass quickly and only briefly be part of the larger news cycle.

In other news, ARSC has joined a group of prestigious cultural organizations in a new Access to Knowledge (A2K) coalition, which is being coordinated by American University and the Library Copyright Alliance. The Coalition will be engaged in the work of the Standing Committee on Copyright and Related Rights (SCCR) at the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), as well as other international forums, advocating for preservation and access provisions in copyright laws worldwide. Our delegate to the coalition will be committee member Eric Harbeson. ARSC was recently granted official observer status by WIPO and the SCCR.

CHANGES COMING TO ARSCLIST: ARSC FORUM

Jeff Willens
Technical Committee

At the recent ARSC Business Meeting, the Board announced that there will be exciting changes happening to the association’s ARSCLIST and ARSCLIB Listservs. We would like to tell you about these changes, too.

In the coming weeks and months, we will be effecting a transition away from the current Listserv platform to a newer, multi-featured environment on Discourse (www.discourse.org/). Discourse is a robust, open-source software primarily for non-profit groups such as ours, and is highly rated for its security and stability.

The new ARSC Forum will eventually replace the current Listservs, which many of the ARSC membership have found to have outlived its usefulness in how ARSC members are able to communicate with one another.

The new ARSC Forum will be open to all, highly customizable, and mobile-compatible. Some of the new features coming to ARSC will include the ability to:

- Organize messages by topic.
- Search the archive for past posts.
- Receive updates via email on all topics, or just the ones you want.
- Post website links, audio and video files (a nice function to have for an audio-based organization), graphics, and other media directly to the site.
- Privately message other members within the Forum.
- Access all the posts from the current Listservs, which will be migrated and searchable in the new Forum.
- Incorporate ARSCLIB as a separate subgroup, and you may subscribe to receive those updates independently.
- Join a subgroup for members-only.
- Receive news, updates, and messages from the Board to the membership much faster than in the past.

We do not want to create this new forum in a vacuum -- we want to hear from YOU! If you have any suggestions for features you would like to see on the new Forum, please contact Jeff Willens (jeffreywillens@nypl.org). We will work with our developer and Discourse to incorporate as many of your suggestions as possible.

We understand change is difficult, but very often, it can be for the better. Thank you in advance for your patience, and stay tuned for more updates.

The Association for Recorded Sound Collections (ARSC) is a nonprofit organization dedicated to the preservation and study of sound recordings, in all genres of music and speech, in all formats, and from all periods. ARSC is unique in bringing together private individuals and institutional professionals—everyone with a serious interest in recorded sound.
NEW MEMBER SPOTLIGHT: MELISSA WEBER

For this edition of Spotlight on a New ARSC Member, we sit down with Melissa Weber, the curator of the Hogan Archive of New Orleans Music and New Orleans Jazz at Tulane University. She also teaches a History of Urban Music course at Loyola University. ARSConians are invited to learn more about her personal collecting and other music-related work at dj soulsister.com.

Welcome to ARSC Melissa. You’ve been appointed curator at the Hogan Archive. What can we expect from the archive’s new name and expanded focus? What most excites you about joining the archive?

The Hogan Archive recently underwent a renaming and rebranding. The new name is the Hogan Archive of New Orleans Music and New Orleans Jazz at Tulane University. It reflects not only the collections that we have and represent, but also those that we anticipate so that we can address collection gaps. Our collections represent a wide range of New Orleans music and musicians ranging from traditional and contemporary jazz to brass bands, Mardi Gras Indians, funk, gospel, rhythm & blues, ragtime, and more. Our collections include archival primary source materials from correspondence and photographs to business records and research files.

We are a major repository of sound recordings with everything from reel-to-reel and cassette tapes to shellac and vinyl discs to cylinders and piano rolls. I love the work that I do because it brings together my interests in and love of music, history, preservation and archives, and my native New Orleans. I’m excited about the opportunity to work towards increasing access around our collections by making them more discoverable. I also am thrilled to tell and help tell stories about New Orleans music and culture through education and community outreach. Personally, I really want to engage more people about what archives are because starting that conversation is the first step to creating a long-lasting legacy for collections, whether that’s a recorded sound collection or another type of collection. I also love learning, and each day brings a different discovery with my work here.

You’re also a serious collector. What do you look for and where has crate digging brought you?

One of the things that attracts me to ARSC is the fact that it brings together career professionals with private collectors and independent researchers. I have a personal hobby as a record collector, and own over 10,000 vinyl recordings of mainly LPs and 12” singles, though there are also some personal audio cassettes of old radio shows I recorded or mixtapes I made when I was much younger. My personal collecting areas include soulful music mainly from the 1970s and 1980s, though there are a few items I own that come from the late 1960s and early 1990s.

When I refer to soulful music, I’m talking about not just a genre of “soul,” but also funk, modern jazz, fusion, underground disco, classics, hip hop, gospel, roots reggae, music from other continents replicating American soulful styles, go-go out of Washington, D.C, Maryland, and Virginia; New Orleans music; holiday novelty recordings representing soulful styles, dancefloor post punk, R&B, classics, rare groove, you name it. I also will always pick up radio shows on vinyl that include interviews with artists from these styles. And I have a fondness for collecting disco dance instruction records. The quirkier, the better.

I also have countless boxes of music ephemera and memorabilia related to the aforementioned styles and artists, and am always looking for more! I’ve officially been a crate digger since I was in high school many moons ago. I love collecting these recordings and materials, but I also love to share them, whether that’s through my WWOZ FM New Orleans radio show, which I’ve done for 25 years; or through my hobby as a performance DJ under the moniker Soul Sister; or as a writer of music reissue liner notes or journalistic pieces; or as a researcher.

and presenter at academic conferences. I am on the path to completion toward my M.A. in musicology, and I consider my collection a wellspring of primary source materials.

Congratulations on your conference scholarship. What brought you to ARSC?

I learned about the ARSC conference through a post on the Music Library Association (MLA) listserv. I also signed up to be paired with a mentor in the ARSC Mentoring Program. My match was Vincent Pelote with the Rutgers University Institute of Jazz Studies. That was an invaluable step in making me feel welcome at ARSC and making me want to sign up as a member even before the conference began. And because I believe in the travel grant program so much, I've since signed up as a member of that planning committee.

HISTORICAL RECORDING

SELECTED BY DORA DUNATOV: “Pluća Su Bolna” Performed by Nada Mamula

It was December 2020. The world was exhausted by constant search for balance in restrictions and cure. God forbid you have sniffles or fever, let alone cough. It meant drowning between four walls for the next two weeks.

On one such gloomy afternoon, I was improving my day going through some Jugoton shellac titles such as “Muyo forges the horse while the moon is high,” “Samobor people drink wine from the pot”, and “Maksim has a bad wife.” Suddenly, a title emerged: “My lungs are aching.” It felt like founding a lost puzzle and putting it back where it belonged. I knew this song is going to be my favorite, at least for a while. It became she.

Like a proper stoker, I searched every single corner of Google to find what is she like. And... I was not mistaken. She held a title of the saddest song ever recorded on ex-Yugoslav territory. Her tragic beauty was so enchanting that they couldn’t let it go. She became the main suspect in a cycle of suicides committed by those suffering from tuberculosis. They put her on the black list, banned her from the public performance, even all records carrying her name were destroyed. Apparently, they could recognize some hidden power that her creator, Dragiša Nedović, riddled in the verses. It was believed he infected those verses with his own lifelong sufferings. Namely, his renowned poet name saved him from being shot in 1941, and was instead sent to a Nazi prison camp. Somehow, he lived through that as well, but there was a fine price to pay. On the way back home to Kragujevac in Serbia, the bloody cough suggested the worse. Convinced in his sure death in 1950, he wrote the song:

My lungs are aching  I don't mourn
I have no more health  My miserable life
For, very close are  For I have never
My last days  Felt happiness
I will live today  Only pain and suffering
And maybe tomorrow too  Bitter tears [have I] shed
But then forever  In my life
Goodbye to my life  I have not been happy

Amazingly, defeating the tuberculosis, Nedović escaped death for the third time in his life. His heart stopped beating only 16 years after he wrote the song. He wasn’t even 50 when he died.

Anyways, the song took the phoenix power from her master. Laying low during the sixties, she came back to life through the wish made by Tito’s wife, Jovanka. She was finally free. This time, instead of going back to male form possessing legendary sevdah singer Zaim Imamović, she took a feminine form through the famous singer Nada Mamula. In that form, she put me to sleep, she woke me up, she monopolized my sighs and my shower singing. All of my friends politely got acquainted, first with some reserve and shock. I mean, she was still 40 years older than us. Then it slowly crawled under their skin and soon became our karaoke star. Even though we don’t communicate as often as before, she remained my muse and my dear friend.

Dora Dunatov is a Croatian ethnomusicologist. She is an Assistant at the Institute of Ethnology and Folklore Research in Zagreb working on the early Croatian record industry. Her doctoral research at KUG (Graz) focuses on the commercial aspect of early Croatian record production.

SOURCE MATERIAL:
SURESH CHANDVANKAR

An investigation into the origins of exceptional collections and how they are serving as source material for research in audio technology and history. This edition we are joined by Dr. Suresh Chandvankar, who has spent thirty years “collecting the collectors” and is the Honorary Secretary of the Society of Indian Record Collectors, which he helped to establish. Suresh is also a retired physicist from Tata Institute of Fundamental Research in Mumbai.

A major project of yours has been and continues to be to build bridges among the record collecting community through the Society of Indian Record Collectors. Could you tell us how you brought this community together? What are some challenges and how have you overcome some hesitancy to share among community members?

It began in 1990 when Compact Discs had just appeared in the market as a new medium for storage of audio. There was a real threat that CD will replace all the traditional formats of sound recordings. Being a gramophone record collector myself (since my school days) I decided to focus on records and record collectors. I came in contact with Mr. Michael Kinnear from Australia who introduced me to the world of discography. He also persuaded me to form a group or friends circle to preserve and document everything concerning gramophone records. In his presence, Society of Indian Record Collectors

Collectors was formed in 1991. We began to meet to listen to records and talk about them. We also began magazine – The Record News and also began guided listening sessions – that became very popular. Soon units in other towns began to function. Thus, the rival collectors became friends and enjoyed being together. This also helped gramophone companies to look for discs with the collectors for reissuing them on tapes and CD. The success lies partly because the collectors were assured that this society wants to bind the members together and not eyeing on their collections for exploitation. As a result, over 100 private individuals came together. Also, three private museums of discs and machines are now functional in 2021. In the current pandemic, we have over 150 members worldwide on shellac & vinyl groups on WhatsApp and exchange information every day. In the past decade of digital world, I am trying to persuade members to be a part of the social media and new ways of sharing.

You are very active on Discogs and the Internet Archive. Can you tell us about what you’re bringing from your collection to these sites?

On Discogs I work on mainly metadata of the audio releases that could be a foundation and information source for the discographers and researchers. I have about 6700 releases entered so far since 2014 On Internet Archive I upload text, audio, video & images – all at one place – I am up to over 2500 posts at the moment.

Another project of yours has been to convince collectors to share their collections with the world through Discogs and the Internet Archive. Why do you think this is important?

Audio supplemented with the allied information is not only a value addition, but also useful to get reference point and provides context and relevance to an un initiated listener.
