

ARSC Journal: Author-Publisher Agreement

The Author(s) guarantee(s) the Association for Recorded Sound Collections (hereafter identified as the publisher) that the article submitted for publication in the ARSC Journal:

(title)

is an original work, and has not been submitted (nor is being considered) for publication elsewhere, either in printed or electronic formats. The Author further guarantees that the article is not libelous and does not infringe upon or interfere with the rights of any person or entity, including without limitation rights of privacy.

It is understood that the Author assumes full responsibility for securing in writing (in advance of publication) all necessary permissions to quote from copyrighted sources and/or reproduce copyrighted photographs or other illustrative material so protected. The Author agrees to furnish the Publisher with copies of said written permissions; credits required by the grantors to be properly given in the aforementioned article.

The Author acknowledges that all submissions to the ARSC Journal are subject to a blind, peer review process. (See ARSC Journal/Information For Contributors as published in each issue of the publication.)

Authors are normally asked to assign copyright to the Publisher. This ensures that requests to reprint articles (or to disseminate them electronically) are handled efficiently. It will also allow the article to be disseminated as widely as possible. If the copyright remains with the Author, it is understood that in return for publication, the Publisher has the sole and exclusive first publication rights to the contribution and the continuing right, without limit, to reproduce the aforementioned article, in whole or in part, either in printed or electronic format.

If the Author desires to retain copyright, please check the box: ☐
